To be Impressed by the Harmonious Beauty of Flowers

Plants and trees are closely related to people's lives. They have their own characteristics of shape, colour and texture, which presents the beauty of their lives and can reflect the feelings of our hearts. When our hearts resonate with the aesthetics of nature and attempt to express our impression in a form, this form becomes ikebana.

We arrange plants cut and removed from nature so that they are filled with new beauty when placed in a new environment. Rather than simply re-create the shape a plant has in nature, we create with branches, leaves, and flowers a new form which holds our impression of a plant's beauty as well as the mark of our own spirit. Meanwhile, this creation should also suggest the forces of nature with which plants live in harmony. This is the soul of Ikebana.

While the vegetarian meals provided at this Vegetarian festival hope to make the visitors to taste the delicious, the beauty of the plants and trees presented through this Ikenobo ikebana exhibition hope to serve as a feast of vision and hearts.
